Ole Miss Law School selects CampusDocs Hosted Solution CampusDocs hosted solution to help streamline management of student records.

HONOLULU, HAWAII – (October 24, 2008) The University of Mississippi (Ole Miss) School of Law has selected CampusDocs, Inc. to help streamline the management and archival of its student records. CampusDocs provides colleges and universities nationwide with Web-based document imaging and management services specifically designed for higher education.

“What stood out to us was the way CampusDocs delivered its solution. Having a hosted solution eliminated the need to invest a lot of dollars up front and didn’t require us to be software or IT project management experts.” says Conny Parham, registrar for the Ole Miss law school. “With CampusDocs we can conserve our resources and focus our attention on improving the way we manage and archive our student records.”

“As budgets begin to shrink and schools look for new and creative ways to save money and increase productivity, we think this plays into the strengths of CampusDocs” says Kevin Awaya, CampusDocs President. “Our SaaS offering provides all the document management features and functions a campus needs but packages it in a way to make it more affordable and accessible for our clients. We are excited to be working with such a prestigious school as Ole Miss Law School and look forward to building a lasting relationship.”

About University of Mississippi School of Law

Founded in 1854, the University of Mississippi School of Law is the country's fourth-oldest state law school. Throughout its history, the School of Law has served as a training ground for leaders in the state, the bar and the nation. Both of the state's U.S. senators, U.S. representatives from Louisiana and Missouri, two 5th Circuit Court of Appeals judges, 12 U.S. District court judges, three U.S. federal magistrates, the governor, the state attorney general and the chancellor of the university are graduates of the school. The nationally-recognized law school boasts an enrollment of about 550 students and ranks as one of the country's top state law schools with a 97.7 percent placement rate. Notable graduates include Mississippi Gov. Haley Barbour, U.S. Sens. Thad Cochran and Roger Wicker, former Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott, former Gov. William Winter and novelist John Grisham.
